Prepaid Overview

Increasingly consumers are turning their attention towards alternative cash management tools that have traditionally included checking accounts and credit and debit cards. Prepaid cards, however, give credit unions a way to connect with new or prospective members who may not have, qualify for, or even want these traditional banking products.

As consumers’ needs evolve and Millennials become recognized as an important, untapped source of new member growth, prepaid cards represent an ideal opportunity for credit unions to grow relevance and engage a population that seeks an alternative payment solution to a traditional deposit account.

The amount of money loaded on general purpose reloadable prepaid debit cards almost tripled from 2008 to 2012, rising to $76.7 billion and is predicted to rise to $168.4 billion by 2015.

All the Right Tools

PSCU’s prepaid solutions give credit unions multiple options to meet members’ diverse requirements for spending flexibility.

Gift Cards – With Prepaid Gift Cards from PSCU, credit unions control the revenue model, plastics design and branding, card inventory and issuance. As the issuer, credit unions set the fees for initial purchase price, inactivity (after 12 months), replacement cards if lost or stolen and monthly maintenance (corporate incentive gift cards only).

Reloadable Prepaid Cards – Prepaid cards that can be replenished with spending power are one of the smartest ways for credit unions to attract new members and build lifelong relationships, especially among Millennials and the underbanked. PSCU offers three unique Reloadable Prepaid programs designed to meet a variety of needs—General Purchase Card, the Student Card and the Vacation Card.

Reloadable EMV Cards – PSCU offers a Reloadable Prepaid card equipped with both an embedded chip and a magnetic stripe. This dual functionality gives members who travel internationally much more utility and security when making non-cash purchases outside the U.S. Integrating EMV technology into card programs now can help credit unions stay a step ahead on the innovation curve in advance of merchants’ migration to EMV card acceptance.

Small Business Prepaid Cards – PSCU offers two Prepaid Programs designed to save small business members money while providing a great benefit to their employees. The Payroll Card offers the perfect alternative to cutting checks, saving the employer money, and offering the unbanked employee access to a Visa-branded payment card that functions similar to a Visa debit card. The Incentive Card is a quick and easy way to recognize employee performance and boost morale, while keeping fees at a minimum.

Make Your Money Matter Prepaid Card – We’ve created a prepaid reloadable solution especially for the Millennial audience – the future members of credit unions who embrace the concept of shopping and spending locally. The card is co-branded with Make Your Money Matter graphics and credit union branding and gives young members the opportunity to show their support for their credit union’s local brand and value in the community.
All the Right Features
It’s more than a card – it’s a program full of features that benefit credit unions, cardholders and parents of young consumers who are embarking on their first experience with a payment card product. The functionality of our Reloadable Prepaid programs makes them a truly robust payment tool with tremendous appeal to current and potential members.

Direct Deposit – Direct deposits to Reloadable Cards eliminate the need for costly check cashing fees, provide immediate funds availability and are safer than cash. Plus, direct deposit capability makes Reloadable Cards feel more like a traditional checking account.

Reload Options – It’s faster and easier than ever for members to reload funds on their cards whether they choose to visit a branch, go online to the My Account website or by phone. Fund transfers can be made from debit or credit card accounts, as well as any checking or savings account.

Message Alerts – Cardholders can choose to receive text messages concerning account balance and transactions. This increases member engagement and allows cardholders to better monitor card usage, a helpful feature for parents teaching budgeting and financial responsibility to their children.

Student Relationship – Parents can enroll several dependents under one relationship. Because each dependent has their own unique card and pool of funds, there is a sense of independence for students. Parents though, still maintain significant control over spending to help teach their children financial responsibility and budgeting.
